

PEACE DAY PHILLY

Recognizing and Interrupting Racism

Monday, September 18, 5:30-7:30pm

Friends Center, 1501 Cherry St, Philadelphia

Presented by:

The Peace Center

with support from American Friends Service Committee

This program is part of Peace Day Philly the local initiative for the UN International Day of Peace - www.peacedayphilly.org

Interrupting expressions of bigotry can be intimidating, but with some practice, we can learn how to move past our shock and concern and move into Upstander mode. Join us as we explore some of the stereotypes and assumptions people have and how we can best respond while keeping everyone safe.

Please REGISTER at EventBrite.com for this free workshop!

Facilitated by

Barbara Simmons

Barbara Simmons has been with The Peace Center for 30 years, serving as executive director. She is an adjunct professor at Arcadia University's International Peace and Conflict Resolution masters program and is producer of PeaceTalks radio project.

Camille Turner

Camille Turner will receive her doctorate in Conflict Transformation from New York Theological Seminary. Her work focuses on trauma impacted experiences of women and girls and the power of their stories to dismantle oppressive narratives and empower their sexual agency. In addition she is working with survivors of military sexual trauma and community gun violence victims and the soci-political intersections that are instrumental in creating effective community and individual and care.
