

The Peace Crane Project is an effective way to educate children through the arts, promote peace and understanding, and connect students around the world. Please join us this year as we connect our youth and celebrate our common goals of peace and unity within our worlds, both local and global. Visit our website: <http://peacecraneproject.org>.

What is the Peace Crane Project?

We are an international exchange program, inviting children around the world to connect through the arts. The Project invites families, schools, community groups, and individuals to fold an origami crane, dove, heart or other symbol of peace, write a message of peace on their creation, then trade it with another group of their choosing. We publish an exchange list of participants and aid in connecting our members, year round.

Why is it Important?

The Peace Crane Project gives children the opportunity to express themselves creatively. It offers the opportunity for them to connect with other children around the world. They learn basic geography, strengthen their writing skills, improve hand-eye coordination, are exposed to other cultures, given the opportunity to hear new languages, and see the world through the eyes of others.

You will receive a weekly newsletter, which includes instructions on how to participate and a copy of our latest exchange list. Many groups join us as part of their United Nations International Day of Peace Celebration. But we host the Peace Crane Project continuously, and have members looking to connect with you every day of the year. Please participate anytime that works for you. Questions?
